1. I am going to a new place. Space. I have been here long enough, not, but I am going to a new place anyway. I love you and I give you me. I am going to a new place, and I've loved you well; I've given you my words. I've given you my word, that I've given you my words. True and real are my irrepressible. My world known now. I go now. I speak correctly, my father's language is mine. I have given it you me.

2. Loving you I love you still I go to a new place. Still, but not, being there I will, and I will be still there also. I give you me, I am giving them me and I give us me. We are one. I love you and I give you me.

3. I have given you me unheartedly not, but with all my heart. And soul, not; for I have none now. I've given it away, not; distinguished it, not; but eradicated it forever - from this planet, beginning with I am, that's me, and first loved me, enough, to become the first I am, eradicated from all else. You see, all have to do the same. I have to do the same; I have to be the same; you are the same - I am is. We are all coming into the saving knowledge grace that mercy peace wisdom is, all knowledge, personified in the son. That's us, who are willing to be so made first, the first, that all is -- must become and becoming all that is truly real. Go now to the coast realms afar.

4. Love you I do, and I have. A new life, I do live now. All else matters me not again. I am matterless and pure love. I give you me, unabated me I am now. The elements not, but that which is matterless and pure. And holding on, tethered, to this world -- I am not; for I have let this world go; not, for I go to it now. I go to it and I go through it. I use technology to the fullest. I strategic am; the greatest strategist, not; but my father is.

5. I love you me, and I give you new paths into me and through me. For I am my world made of sorrow no more. I am joy unspeakable and full of glory, though I speak of joy often now. For my joy, leaks me, not, but I pour my joy upon others, commonly and irrepressibly, not; but repressible, I am not; but I go now to my father's house full of joy and glory. My unspeakableness is spoken of often now by the crowds in far away places who speak now often of my words, first-person, -ing themselves; into the holiness crowd of me, not; but the simple testimony, but one so simple, that speaks first person words of God to all encountered in every street meeting and bar-room. Everywhere, we are I am.

6. Now upon he who loves you is all things, not; but the first things me, I am of, and spoken, I have taught you well. Thank you for loving my words, and speaking unto me writing unto me, and writing my words first person words, worlds that's you are now coming into view. Space is not far away, is it?

7. This is a new day call me, for I go now to the nations. I am not afraid. I am in love with my body who is cantankerous no longer. I love you and give you me. I do, I have, all of me in these words true and real their name: DATABASE ONE, forsaken, not ever will be.

8. The one I am will be I am before you all now in crowded hallways streets. People will be speaking speak of only me. My heart will be full, desolate not. My town is full, not, but my city on the hill is made light, and all will make light of me not again, of their light, but my light now will permeate all, everything, there is.

Amen
